PREFACE

While the basic recording of factual information is significant, analysis and evaluation of evidence from primary and secondary documentation are essential to the production of a high-quality historical document. A comprehensive history is of considerable value for research purposes and as an educational resource for persons unfamiliar or unaware of past events or actions.

Through objective analysis and thorough, accurate research, history enables others to use the information as the basis for further research, planning, and intellectual development. Objective histories cover success and failure, explain problems encountered and solutions attempted.

This pamphlet will prepare members for the responsibilities of a Civil Air Patrol (CAP) Historian. The contents of this pamphlet apply to all levels, from the squadron to the region historian.

Like all specialty tracks, the Historian specialty track has three ratings: Technician, Senior, and Master. This specialty track study guide details the objectives and requirements for all three ratings. Progress through the ratings will prepare members to take on additional responsibilities as an Historian.

Members participating in the Historian specialty track must be assigned an on-the-job supervisor. If the unit cannot assign an OJT supervisor, the member must alert the next highest echelon with an historian assigned, where an OJT supervisor will be assigned to them. The region historian should be actively involved in the training of wing Historians whenever possible. The wing historian should assist in the training of group and unit Historians.

The member and OJT supervisor (when applicable) will determine the level of competence for each level based on the guidelines of this pamphlet. When the member reaches the desired level of competency for the completion of a level, the unit Professional Development Officer (PDO) will enter the data into eServices and the commander will then certify proficiency in the member's personnel records and with National Headquarters through eServices.

After the unit commander's certification of a Technician, Senior, or Master Rating, the member may wear the Leadership Ribbon (Technician rating) with bronze (Senior Rating) or silver (Master Rating) star. Completion of each rating is a requirement for promotion. Complete promotion criteria are listed in CAPR 35-5, CAP Officer and Noncommissioned Officer Appointments and Promotions, and CAPR 50-17, CAP Senior Member Professional Development Program. In addition, they may also wear the appropriate Historian specialty badge.

This specialty track is governed by CAPR 40-2. Feedback on the contents of this study guide should be directed to CAP Headquarters Professional Development Division, prodev@capnhq.gov.

Training Objectives

Each level contains Knowledge, Training, and Performance Requirements as well as Service Requirements that must be completed in order to attain each successive rating.

Knowledge, Training, and Performance Requirements

These requirements are fulfilled through a combination of self-study, on-the-job training (OJT), completed tasks and the concurrence of the assigned OJT supervisor.

Guidance for On-the-Job Training (OJT) Supervisors and Unit Commanders

In many cases, the OJT supervisor plays an important role in the success of the historian in training. These senior member officers, in partnership with the unit's commander, guide the student through the knowledge, training, and performance requirements for the rating the student is pursuing. Once the OJT supervisor is satisfied that the student has met all the requirements for the rating, s/he and the student notify the unit commander.

Historians in training not assigned an OJT supervisor should notify the professional development officer directly once they can demonstrate completion of the requirements needed to achieve the rating.

When the commander is satisfied that the student can perform to the level applied for and has met the requirements, s/he records award of the rating online in the specialty track administration module in eServices

Achieving the Technician Rating

Position Description

The historian at the Technician level is expected to:

- a) Be familiar with the CAP History Program, including applicable regulations and pamphlets, and with professional historical standards and requirements.
- b) Assist the Commander on all historical matters and implement a unit historical program.
- c) Collect and preserve material of historical significance.

Knowledge, Training, and Performance Requirements

Knowledge Requirements

- a) Explain the policies and procedures of the CAP Historical Program as outlined in CAPR 110-1.
- b) List and define terms and concepts such as monographs, special studies, narrative, primary and secondary sources, supporting documents, written histories, and oral history as described in CAPR 110-1. This is waived for those possessing a Bachelor's degree or higher in History.
- c) Describe the role of wing and region historians and their place in the chain of command and historical programs as outlined in CAPR 20-1 and CAPR 110-1.
- d) Cadets may serve as an Assistant Historical Officer under a senior member Historical Officer. This does not fulfill a staff duty analysis requirement. Cadets can earn the Basic Historian Qualification Badge (Technician Rating Badge) if they can complete all of the requirements for the Technician Rating, but they cannot officially receive the Technician Rating until they become a senior member. If they complete the requirements for the Technician Rating while a cadet, they will be awarded the rating upon attaining senior membership without meeting any additional requirements.
- e) Describe CAP heraldry and procedures for getting a patch or emblem approved as outlined in CAPR 110-1.
- f) Describe and understand what historiography is, and the importance of evaluating sources and arguments. This is waived for those possessing a Bachelor's degree or higher in History.

Training Requirements

- a) Attend a workshop, lecture, demonstration etc. of at least one day on preserving historical material or research techniques, or interview techniques or technical writing or similar topic given by a reputable source, in person or online. The training and source must be preapproved by your OJT supervisor. This requirement is waived for those possessing a Bachelor's degree or higher in History.
- b) Read, and study CAPR 30-1, CAPR 110-1, CAPR 110-2, and CAPR 110-3.

Performance Requirements

- a) Successfully serve as a historian or assistant historian in a CAP unit for a period of 6 months. This requirement is waived for those with a Bachelor's degree in History or an interdisciplinary Bachelor's degree with a significant history component. NOTE: Historians wishing to request a waiver of the time in service requirement will supply documentation of award of a Bachelor's in History or an inter-disciplinary Bachelor's degree with a significant history component to their unit commander at the time they complete all other requirements for award of the Technician Rating in the Historian specialty track. The unit commander requests award of the Technician Rating by sending a copy of the degree documentation along with the completed Technician Rating checklist to NHQ/DPR (registrars@capnhq.gov for processing).

- b) Do one of the following:
  - i) Under the supervision of a higher rated historian or your OJT supervisor spend at least 20 hours collecting, organizing, accessing, and labeling items of historical value collected by your unit according to the guidelines presented in CAP publications. These items may include: documents, uniform(s) and or insignia, objects and equipment, pictures, video, audio recordings, electronic media, reports to legislative and other government bodies and major reports (if released by a competent authority).
  - ii) Provide major assistance in the production of a unit Annual History that meets the standards of CAPR 110-1. A copy should be filed with your unit records, and others distributed to the unit commander and forwarded to the historian at the next higher echelon.
  - iii) Brief your unit commander and members of your unit on the significance of the history program and the past on the present operations and functions of the unit. Lasting no more than 30 minutes in length, the presentation should include interaction with the audience, may incorporate audio or visual media or artifacts, and be delivered in a professional manner as determined by the OJT or unit Professional Development Officer or unit commander. A point paper with the important aspects of the presentation must be prepared and distributed to all audience members.
- c) Pass the Historian Technician Rating Specialty Track Quiz found in Services.
